

Megan Stafford

Megan Stafford has worked in the energy industry for close to two decades and has expertise in energy trading as well in the interstate pipeline sector.

Ms. Stafford joined Williams, one of the nation's leading energy infrastructure companies, in 2009 in Human Resources and was promoted to Director in 2013 overseeing human resource activities for the Transco Pipeline—a 10,200-mile interstate transmission pipeline system, extending from South Texas to New York City.

In 2014, Ms. Stafford joined the Williams Public Outreach Group, executing initiatives to state and local officials as well as other stakeholders for projects on the Transco Pipeline. Public outreach is the first step on the critical path of project management and execution: the plan, design, build, operation and maintenance of Williams' pipeline facilities.

In her role, Ms. Stafford also regularly works with state and local first responders to develop safety training and response protocols for use in communities crossed by the Transco Pipeline system.

Ms. Stafford holds a Bachelor of Science degree in Human Resources from the University of Houston.
